

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for testing internationalization in a program under development includes determining whether a command contains a test switch, which initiates the internationalization testing and displaying a character string being tested in a first format when the command contains the test switch.

10016748-1